

GPM Qualification

Certified Project Manager

IPMA® Level C

Why should you take this qualification course?

The IPMA Level C is suitable for individuals who already manage projects independently. This training prepares participants for the efficient management of projects. In the course, challenging case studies, reflection, and practice-oriented exercises are offered. Additionally, you will learn how to master agile, traditional, and hybrid project management approaches. In addition, personal, social, and leadership skills are addressed, as well as contextual competences for project management.

For Level C, you need proof of at least 3 years of professional experience in a responsible project management role of moderately complex projects or in a responsible sub-project leadership role of complex projects.

If you wish to expand and consolidate your project management knowledge, master PM methods confidently, and pass them on to others – this course is for you.

What will you achieve by this course?

- You will master agile, traditional, and hybrid project management approaches and be able to apply them purposefully based on complexity and strategy of your project
- You will expand and strengthen your leadership skills in projects.
- You will learn what modern leadership of a project team means and how to apply it, including virtual leadership through remote work.
- You will confidently step into your project role with a well-equipped toolkit of methods that you can apply effectively.
- Project management methods will no longer be a challenge for you. With your acquired knowledge, you can combine various methods and steer your project purposefully.
- Your professional competence will be complemented by modern methodological and communication skills as well as a reflective and professional approach to working with your team.
- Up to date comprehensive overviews of project management methods.
- Excellent and practical exam preparation, including extensive support and feedback on your report.
- Personal development: Working on your own role as a project manager and leader
- Practice over theory: Transfer of knowledge from theory to your own practical experience.
- Beyond traditional PM: Expand your methodological knowledge with agile and hybrid techniques
- Outside the box: In the course, you exchange ideas and network with colleagues from different branches.

Course format

This online course lasts 7 days over a period of 2-3 months, plus time for self-study and work on your report. The phases between classes serve for follow-up on the course content, for knowledge transfer to your own projects and for exam preparation (report).

The course is designed as a higher-level certification, starting from an existing Level D certificate.

Initial certification

You don't yet have Level D certification? Then it is best to attend one of our Level D courses first. Alternatively, you can take our additional 3-day online crash course to prepare for the Level C course.

If you book both courses simultaneously, we will offer you a special price.

Follow-up certification

You hold a Level D certificate before entering the Level C course.

Exam / certification

The exam takes place over 3 days and consists of: Written exam (120 minutes), Level C report, Role-play-based scenario workshop and an interview.

Those who possess a Level D certificate are exempt from the workshop.
